Short term pensions

If you die in service or within a year of leaving due to ill health (but haven't received ill-health benefits under the Teachers' Pension Salary) a short-term pension may be paid to your beneficiary for three months at the rate of your final salary. There's also an equivalent short-term pension payable for one or more eligible children, paid concurrently.

Other things you should know about short-term pensions:

- If you die after retirement, a short-term pension (payable for 3 months at the rate of your final pension) is only payable if a long-term pension(s) is due to be paid. An equivalent short-term pension payable for one or more eligible children, paid concurrently, is also available.
- If there's no spouse, civil partner, nominated dependent relative or qualifying partner but one or more eligible children, a short-term pension would be paid for six months at the rate of your final salary or pension.

Adult's pension

Your beneficiaries will get a pension if you have at least 2 years' service covered for family benefit. It is calculated at the rate of 1/160 of your average salary for each year of family benefit service. If all your service counts for family benefit, it'll be half of your pension. If you haven't covered all your service it'll be a smaller proportion. A pension is payable for life if you had pensionable service on or after 1 January 2007.

Children's pensions

Children's pensions are payable for:

- Children under 17 years of age or who are under 23 and receiving full-time continuing education or training lasting at least 2 years (where the annual rate of pay relating to the training course does not exceed a certain level, currently £2757.00) without a break of more than 1 academic year; or
- Children who are incapacitated and dependent upon you when you die. If an adult pension is payable children's pensions are payable based on all pensionable service under the TPS from 1 April 1972.

If there's no pension payable to an adult, a higher rate of child's pension may be payable.

Where an adult pension is payable, the calculation of pension for one child is:

$$\frac{\text{Pension} = \text{Average salary (at retirement)} \times \text{family benefit service}}{320}$$

Where an adult pension is payable, the calculation of pension for 2 children or more is:

$$\frac{\text{Pension} = \text{Average salary (at retirement)} \times \text{family benefit service}}{160}$$

This amount is to be divided equally amongst however many children there are.

Where no adult pension is payable, a higher rate of service may be applicable (to be determined at the time of death). The calculation of pension for 1 child is:

$$\frac{\text{Pension} = \text{Average salary (at retirement)} \times \text{family benefit service}}{240}$$

Where no adult pension is payable, the calculation of pension for 2 children or more is:

$$\frac{\text{Pension} = \text{Average salary (at retirement)} \times \text{family benefit service}}{120}$$

This amount is to be divided equally amongst however many children there are.

Index linking of family pensions

Family pensions are increased annually in line with rises in the cost of living.

Increasing the value of family pensions

Your qualifying service determines the rate of your pension. So if you want to increase your pension, you'll need to purchase all or part of your earlier service. You can only make an election to do this:

- within 6 months of returning to pensionable employment if you've not been employed for any continuous period of 6 months from 26 June 1973 (male married to female), 1 October 1988 (other marriage, female to male, male to male, and female to female.) or from 5 December 2005 (for civil partner's pensions);
- within 6 months of your marriage or civil partnership registration;
- within 6 months of returning to pensionable employment if you married or registered a civil partnership while not employed;
- within 6 months of becoming a qualifying partner.

Notes

Please read these notes before completing form 'Reinstating previously withdrawn contributions'. Please retain this page.

1. You may elect to repay any contributions you previously withdrew from the Teachers' Pension Scheme (TPS) provided the contributions were withdrawn before 1 June 1973. You must currently be in pensionable employment (i.e. paying teachers' pension contributions), or in comparable British service (i.e. paying teachers' pension contributions under the schemes operating in Scotland or Northern Ireland).
2. If you are currently in pensionable re-employment after retiring from the Teachers' Pension Scheme you are not eligible to repay any withdrawn contributions.
3. When contributions are repaid to the scheme the original period of service is restored as being pensionable service in the Teachers' Pension Scheme and will be used in any future calculations.
4. The basic amount to be repaid is the gross amount of contributions previously withdrawn, together with compound interest at 3.5% per annum calculated to the expected payment date.
5. The following method of payment will be used: a single lump sum – in all cases where the total amount to be repaid is less than £500. This must be paid within 10 weeks of the election being accepted;
6. Tax relief may be obtained from Her Majesty's Revenue & Customs (HMRC) in respect of the reinstated contributions. You will need to contact your local inspector of taxes directly.
7. Once you have completed the application form, you should forward it to your employer. Your employer will complete Part B and forward your application to Teachers' Pensions.
