Information

The Lifetime Allowance

The Lifetime Allowance was abolished with effect from 6 April 2024, and replaced by three new allowances. The Lifetime Allowance was introduced by the Finance Act 2004 and was a limit on the amount of pension benefit that could be taken (crystallised) from pension schemes - whether lump sums or a retirement income - and could be paid without trigger an extra charge. Pensions payable from the State or received because you could've been a dependant (e.g. a surviving spouse's pension) did not count towards the LTA.

The Lifetime Allowance limits can be found here:
<http://www.teacherspensions.co.uk/updates>

Lifetime Allowance protections

With each change to the LTA, HMRC provided for individuals, who found themselves close to or above the new LTA, the opportunity to apply for "protection". Individuals were also able to apply for an increase to the standard LTA if they had benefits relating to overseas service or a pension credit resulting from divorce.

If you had LTA protection or an uplifted LTA, this 'personal LTA' should've been used in the calculation rather than the standard LTA. At retirement, if your benefits exceeded your LTA, the amount by which you had exceeded will be taxed at 25% and your pension benefits would've been reduced accordingly to pay this charge.

Lump Sum Allowance and Lump Sum and Death Benefits Allowance

The Finance act 2024 which amends the Finance Act 2004, abolished the LTA and introduced three new allowances in its place. The new allowances are: Lump Sum Allowance, Lump sum & Death benefits Allowance and the Overseas Transfers Allowance. The new allowances are broadly intended to replicate the tax-free allowances which were available to pension scheme members under the previous regime. For instance, the standard Lump Sum Allowance has been set at £268,275, mirroring the maximum tax-free Pension Commencement Lump Sum a member could receive previously. The Lump Sum and Death Benefit Allowance and the Overseas Transfer Allowance operate separately from one another but are both set at £1,073,100.

Transitional Tax free Amount Certificate

On account of the introduction of the Lump Sum Allowance, members who have crystallised benefits before 6 April 2024 and have not taken the maximum 25% tax free lump sum can apply for a Transitional tax free amount certificate. Where a Transitional Tax Free Amount Certificate has not been awarded, the standard transitional calculation would be applicable and presumes a 25% tax free lump sum was taken.

Benefits already taken

Any benefits previously taken are accounted for when calculating the Lump Sum Allowance available, this includes those taken before the Lump sum Allowance was introduced.
